

First Conference Journal:

When we think about cultural integration, we immediately think about the differences: language, religion, political thought etc...

But the real beauty of an intercultural relationship consists in the aspects we have in common with the other people.

We could feel that in November, when we hosted German and French girls from two secondary schools which are our partners in a Comenius Project called 'Art2Click'. We showed them our city and, on Saturday, we visited Milan.

This is a short account of the days we spent together:

Day 1 - 14th November 2012, Casalbusterlengo (Lo).

Arrival of the guests in the evening.

Day 2 - 15th November 2012, Casalbusterlengo (Lo)

After a night spent with Italian students, we met at our school where we showed a short presentation of our work, then French and German students presented their schools.

After the presentation, we attended a photography lesson given by Nunzio Battaglia, a famous Italian photographer. After that, in the afternoon, we went around the town to take some photos.

Day 3 - 16th November 2012, Vigoleno, Castell'Arquato (Pc)

Trip to Vigoleno and Castell'Arquato by bus!

We left Casalbusterlengo in the morning, happy and hopeful. Two hours later we arrived at Vigoleno, a beautiful and well preserved medieval village, visited the castle and took a lot of photos. In the afternoon, after having lunch in a pizzeria we went to Castell'Arquato. After visiting the village, we had time to get acquainted with our guests.

Day 4 - 17th November 2012, Casalbusterlengo (Lo)

Last day!

On Saturday we spent the morning at school. We chose the photos to put in the Project Website and the logo of the project. After lunch, we caught the train for Milan and we spent there the rest of the day.

Day 5 - 19th November 2012, Malpensa (Mi)

This was the end of our wonderful experience, the guests left Italy sadly but richer inside thanks to this trip.

Alessia, Matteo, Lorenzo & Luna